SOUTH ARTS SEeks a FIRM OR CONSULTANT TO DESIGN & IMPLEMENT ARTS ORGANIZATION CAPACITY BUILDING CURRICULUM FOR EQUITY BASED PROGRAM

Program Overview:
The Southern Cultural Treasures initiative is modeled on the Ford Foundation’s “America’s Cultural Treasures” initiative. This national initiative aims to support arts and culture groups “that have been historically marginalized, underfunded and underrepresented in the narrative of American culture.”

Purpose
South Arts’ purpose in developing the Southern Cultural Treasures Program (SCT) is to acknowledge and honor the diversity of artistic expression and excellence of arts and cultural organizations led by and serving people of color in the South Arts region.

Through this initiative, South Arts will provide critical funding and resources that lead BIPOC (Black, Indigenous, People of Color) organizations to stability and success, and enhance their ability to expand their impact on the regional cultural landscape. South Arts has, through a generous matching gift from the Ford Foundation, a unique opportunity to leverage funding to catalyze increased funding support for arts and cultural organizations led by and serving people of color in the South Arts region.

In “Not Just Money: Equity Issues in Philanthropy,” published by the Helicon Collaborative in 2017, Helicon identified that the existing systems and structures have constant traits. On the one hand, they promulgate financial sustainability of White and European arts and cultural organizations while, on the other hand, they prevent the same benefits to arts and cultural groups serving communities of color. In 2021, the same systemic inequities hold true as the effects of the pandemic bring this disparity in sharp relief. It will require meaningful investments over sustained periods to help BIPOC led and serving arts and cultural organizations grow their capacity and financial reserves to overcome these historic challenges.

Goal
The program goal is to provide financial capital and other resources to BIPOC led and serving arts and cultural organizations, such that these organizations are positioned to achieve self-determined success.

This initiative aims to (1) build the skills of organizational leaders so that they create the conditions necessary for their organization to achieve self-defined success, (2) provide general operating and project support grants, and (3) create awareness/recognition of BIPOC led and serving arts and cultural organizations to attract new or increased funding. Twelve to fifteen organizations will receive each:

- General operating grants of up to $300,000 distributed over three years
- Project grants of up to $7,500
• Support to achieve stabilization and growth, and
• Networking, cohort building, and knowledge sharing

Program Outcomes:
South Arts anticipates that after three years, the sixteen participating organizations will be better resourced for long term stability and self-defined success, as well as enhance their ability to expand their impact on the regional cultural landscape.

Consultant Scope of Work:
In our effort to assist sixteen organizations achieve self-determined success, we are seeking a qualified consultant/firm to design and implement an arts organization cohort learning curriculum based on the program’s goals and outcomes. The curriculum, or learning experiences, will need to be responsive to the needs of the cohort, which represents a diverse group of cultural organizations (geography, urban/rural, audiences served, budget size, etc.). As part of the Southern Cultural Treasure Cohort’s professional development journey with South Arts, we are seeking a consultant/firm that will:
- Analyze initial survey feedback to gauge the learning needs/wants of the cohort.
- Gather feedback from cohort to support the design elements of learning experiences: workshops, facilitated discussions, peer knowledge exchange, etc.
- Identify and manage additional faculty, workshop facilitators, or speakers.
- Oversee the learning experiences – includes, but not limited to, scheduling, cohort communications, and follow-up.
- Develop curriculum design, methodology and evaluation metrics, and conduct follow-up work (as needed).
- Develop a formative process or feedback loops for agile learning experiences
- Submit an interim written report and final written report, each with summative evaluation metrics of learning objectives.

All work products shall require the approval of South Arts. Evaluation will be carried out August/September 2022 – March 2025, with a written report due by April 30, 2025.

Proposals:
No specific format is required for a proposal. Proposals should include the following:

- Your proposed approach to developing professional development curriculum for adult learners.
- Your relevant experience with BIPOC led and serving arts and cultural organizations
- Examples of experience that clearly respond to the program needs and goals.
- Any further information that would help South Arts understand your perspective/philosophy on diversity and equity of funding of BIPOC led and serving arts and cultural organizations, work with BIPOC led and serving arts and cultural organizations, and/or experience with the arts.
- Your proposed fee/budget (exclusive of all expenses such as the travel expenses for three one-day, in-person meetings in the South Arts region - South Arts will reimburse for travel expenses), up to $15,000.
- Your proposed timeline, either agreement to the above-described timeline or an alternative proposal
- Resume'/CV
- Three references

Please send any questions or submissions to Jessyca Holland, Director, Organization and Community Initiatives, at southernculturaltreasures@southarts.org by 11:59 p.m. ET on June 30, 2022.
